Breast Core Biopsy: Aftercare

Patient Information

Breast Screening Unit, Thomas Linacre Centre
What is a core biopsy?
A core biopsy uses a wide needle to take small pieces of tissue from the breast, under local anaesthetic.

An ultrasound scan or mammogram may be used as a guide to pinpoint the area, particularly when it’s very small or can’t be felt.

The pieces of tissue are sent to the Laboratory where they are looked at under a microscope. This helps to make a diagnosis.

How do I care for my breast after the core biopsy?
A small cut has been made in your skin and a dressing has been placed over this.

The dressing should be left in place for 3 days. It is important to keep the wound clean and dry.

How will I feel when I get home?
The local anaesthetic will wear off after about 2 hours. Your breast may ache and may also become bruised. You can take Paracetamol if the area is tender or painful.

Take it easy for the rest of the day; don’t do any heavy lifting or a lot of moving around.

What if I feel unwell?
Occasionally, the wound may start to bleed again. If this happens, press firmly on the dressing. If the bleeding continues or you have any concerns, please contact us (see below).

Very occasionally, the wound may become infected. If this happens you will feel unwell and your breast may be red and sore. You will need treatment for this, so please contact us (see below).

When will I get the results?
Your results are usually ready within 10 days but sometimes it may take longer.

Ask 3 Questions

Become more involved in decisions about your healthcare. You may be asked to make choices about your treatment. To begin with, try to make sure you get the answers to three key questions:

1. What are my options?
2. What are the pros and cons of each option for me?
3. How do I get support to help me make a decision that is right for me?
