Smoking in pregnancy poses significant health risks to both mother and baby

Smoking in pregnancy is specifically associated with a significantly increased risk of:

- Miscarriage and ectopic pregnancy.
- Stillbirth.
- Premature birth.
- Low birth weight (due to baby not getting the oxygen and nutrients it needs to grow and be healthier).
- Neonatal admissions.
- Neonatal death.
- Birth defects.
- Babies born to mothers who smoke are twice as likely to die from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS).

Myth Busting

Nicotine replacement therapies such as patches, lozenges and gum are completely safe to use in pregnancy and we can provide them for you.

Benefits of Quitting

Stopping smoking at any stage of pregnancy will have significant benefits to both mother and baby's health. Research has shown that if a woman quits by 15 weeks of pregnancy the risk of premature birth and having a small baby is the same as that of a woman who has never smoked.

What you can do...

The most effective way to quit for pregnant smokers is with behavioural support, and many women can benefit from this combined with the use of nicotine replacement therapy (NRT).

The WWL Maternity Smokefree Pregnancy team can support you to quit and provide you with the information and tools you need, as well as ongoing support to stay smoke-free.

Our aim is to help you to protect the health of you and your baby.

Ask 3 Questions

Become more involved in decisions about your healthcare. You may be asked to make choices about your treatment. To begin with, try to make sure you get the answers to three key questions:

1. What are my options?
2. What are the pros and cons of each option for me?
3. How do I get support to help me make a decision that is right for me?
